

Industrial Hygiene Companies that are AFS Members

The American Foundry Society (AFS) does not endorse one company over another. We provide the names below because they are members of AFS and many are working on our Safety Committee and/or are familiar with the foundry setting and the industrial hygiene issues related to foundries. They are listed in alphabetical order. Those who use this list are strongly encouraged to conduct their own vetting and background checks. Corporate members are listed first in bold print, followed by individual members.
